LETTERS TELL HEROISM
Richmond Hill Officer
Avenges Mutilation of Boy and Collects Souvenirs.

Lieut. Winfield M. Putnam, son of Dr. Willard S. Putnam, chemist, 11 West Ninth street, who has been instructor in chemistry at Cooper Union for some years, was severely wounded August 18. In a telegram to his father he says his wounds necessitated the amputation of one foot, but that he was resting comfortably and expected soon to be invalided home. Lieut. Putnam is 24 years old. He was a student at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute at the outbreak of the war and relinquished his studies in August, 1917, to take an examination for a commission. He attended officers' training camps at Fort Leavenworth, Plattsburgh, Camp Green and the artillery school at Fort Smith, Oklahoma. He sailed for France in May with the Sixteenth Field Artillery, and was later appointed battalion gun officer and instructor in gas defense tactics.

Lieut. Frank Weiner, Company H, 18th Infantry, has cabled to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Weiner, 729 Church street, Richmond Hill, L. I., that he has been wounded in the leg, but not seriously. He is 28 years old. He served his commission at Plattsburgh. He had three years of military experience in the Twenty-third Regiment, with which he served on the Mexican border. Lieut. Weiner has sent home many trophies captured from the Germans, and in one of his letters he said:

"I don't know whether I wrote you about the little boy I saw. He was probably 4 or 5 years old. His hand was shot up on a stake like a scorpion. For which I went out and collected myself a Dutch pistol and a belt buckle which grew on a perfectly good boot. Of course I had to spoil him a little to get them, but it helped to pay for the kid a little. I am enclosing a field post card which I got off another Boche."

Insurance in Liberty Bonds.

Mrs. Helen Weeber, of Brooklyn, mother of Private Frederick Weeber, who was killed in action August 25, will purchase Liberty bonds with the $10,000 she will receive as insurance following the death of her son. She made this statement as the sirens and bells announced the opening of the fourth Liberty Loan campaign and declared that she wanted to help the drivers to victory. Private Weeber was 25 years old. He sailed for France in April with Battery D, 20th Field Artillery. The same hour his mother received a telegram telling of his death she also received a letter which Private Weeber wrote as he was resting on the battle lines. It said that his battalion was about to advance. Before entering the service Weeber was employed by the Pierce-Arrow Automobile Company in Brooklyn. He has a brother in the auto squadron.

Private John Joseph Dolan, 28, Company K, 26th Infantry, wrote a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dolan, 271 Bleeker street, Brooklyn. August 20, one day before he died of wounds in a hospital in France. He asked his mother not to worry about his wounds. The letter described the repulse of a German attack and ended by predicting a speedy end of the war.

Private Charles Wiesenthal, 28, Company E, 15th Infantry, to cross the Ourcq River and the first one killed, according to information conveyed to his parents at 548 Riverside Drive, by a comrade who saw the incident. He wrote that Private Wiesenthal died game, and that his company was still in the fight. His company, Private Wiesenthal was an architect in business with his father at 214 Lafayette street, Jersey City, when he enlisted in the old Seventh Regiment. While making the trip across he contracted typhoid fever and was in a base hospital in London several weeks.

Dies in Italian Hospital.

Ensign Louis J. Bergen, 26, of the Naval Reserves, who was fatally injured in a seaplane accident at Ravenna, Italy, was the son of Mrs. Ellen J. Bergen, who has a summer home at 20 Lenox street, Kew Gardens. His death occurred September 15 at a hospital at Como, Italy. He was a graduate of Cooper Union and enlisted in the Naval Reserves in August, 1917. In a qualifying examination at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology he gained the highest percentage in a class of 3,000 and received his commission. Ensign Bergen was sent to Italy and assigned to a coast patrol on the Adriatic Sea.

Corporal Charles J. Freytag, 21, who enlisted three years ago and was one of the first of the American troops to land in France, has been severely wounded in action. He made his home with his parents at 615 Eighth street, College Point, L. I.

Private Thomas Fitzgerald, Jr., Company L, Sixth Infantry, may not be as severely wounded as was at first reported. In a letter to his father at 524 West 162d street, dated August 19, two days after he was wounded, a nurse in the base hospital wrote that the young man expected to be back in the front line.

Private David P. Morris, 23, Sixth Regiment, Marines, who made his home with his sister, Mrs. Jameson, 44 Convent avenue, and who had been reported killed, is now reported to have been severely wounded.

Private John J. Doris, Eighteenth Company, Sixth Regiment, Marine Corps, is reported to have died of wounds July 20, but his family believe some mistake has been made, as they received a letter dated August 21 from Hugh Murtha, who wrote: "John and I are in a base hospital, both of us being slightly wounded."

Private Indra Weinstein, 25, who enlisted December 6, 1917, with Company M, First Engineers, United States Regulars, was killed in action July 16. In a letter to his parents at 97 Avenue B, dated July 14, he said he was doing some bombing work and that he had celebrated July Fourth by firing fifteen shots at the Boches, many of them taking effect.

Lieut. W. Carroll Taylor, 22, a former East Orange high school boy, who enlisted in the regulars a few days before war was declared, was wounded July 17. He had been in the employ of the Newark Evening News. His family lives in Newark.

Private Robert E. Connors, 19, Company 15th Engineers, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Connors, 418 Warren street, Brooklyn, was severely wounded in the head July 29. In his last letter to his father from the base hospital he said: "Well, pop, in my last scrap I killed two Boches and wounded one before they got me, so that gives me some satisfaction."
